TO CATCH UP WITH DIGITAL CURIOSITY

As aspiring technocrats of the future, Ace Kids jumped on the bandwagon of the IT EXPO 2015-16 organised by the IT Department on January 8. Eager to catch up with the trendy digital planet, the techno savvy youngsters proved their competitive edge in developing software for games and social Apps.

The exhibition housed a number of gadgets, hardware units and still models. A display of how to assemble various components that constitute a working computer was as informative as the operational procedure of a Lift system. Power point presentations and video films directed and acted in by the students themselves were the main attractions of the show. The winners returned proudly with trophies received from the Principal.

Principal's Desk SPRINGBOARD FOR CREATIVITY

ACE QUILLS, a news magazine published internally for its public by Ace Public School was launched in March 2014. Since then it has served several issues covering the pulse of the institution. Through its pages, the chosen batches of students are free to express their ideas in any form they prefer. Usually, the editors take utmost care in preserving the originality of children's scribbling while trying to prune them to acceptable size and shape. What is discouraged is the bias towards plagiarism. The special issue of Ace Quills published on the occasion of the 10th foundation day included inputs from alumni and a few students, apart from an informative interview with the Malappuram DDE and a contribution from a parent. Given the door of opportunity being opened through the pages of its monthly editions, this special issue should have been richer with more participation from the chosen group. Naturally, it takes us to the realization that youngsters should gain more confidence for writing and trying to improve it. Let us create a passion for writing and feel the thrill of its taking shape. Of course, not everyone who writes turns into a professional writer, but none can thwart our humble attempts to find out a personal style which can veritably give vent to our ideas and feelings. Once our writing style is discovered and established, the realm of authorship belongs to our own jurisdiction! Ace Quills has become a tool for the school to reach out to its community so that parents can keep abreast of the latest activities undertaken by the school. Noticeably, no space is set aside for sponsorship or advertisement. Its objective is clear: to afford kids with maximum chance to explore and develop their inherent talents for creative expression, however meagre it is. So, all students can confidently take steps on the path of creative expression. Let it begin from the Ace Quills, the springboard for your ideas!

SNAKES; FRIENDS OR FOES?

The renowned rescuer and relocator, Mr. Rahman Upoodan handled a session in Ace to sensitise students on the significance of snakes in our ecosystem. The motive behind the live heroic display of poisonous snakes was to enable all to discard the inherent phobia and natural aversion to reptiles. Mr. Rahman urged the audience to treat snakes with empathy with an understanding that 'man is the most poisonous and deadly being on earth'. This approach encouraged all to accept and appreciate the utility of such beings in nature. Fear of reptiles, particularly of snakes, being the most prevalent factor contributing to our onslaught on snakes, there needs to be campaigns held everywhere to help people dispel the thick layers of myths enshrouded in the society. In fact, people succumb more to panic than poison after a snake bite, he says. A lengthy doubt clearing session curtailed chiefly by lapse of time was solid proof that even the educated are not free from misconceptions and are quite detached from the basic understanding of the principles of the Serpentine Kingdom. The school Principal delivered the welcome address and the school captain Hamna Ismail cast the vote of thanks.

A SHOT IN THE ARM IN THE NICK OF TIME

The present Xth batch received a motivation class from the famous trainer and trust member Mr. Noushad Areacode on how to plan and prepare for Board Examination on 25th January. The lengthy session was thought provoking, connecting the participants to anecdotes of inspiring experience of people who could steer clear of difficult circumstances. With the skilful use of rhetoric, Mr.Noushad caused a stir in the audience guiding them to effectively formulate an inside out strategy of study tips. The students were awakened to novel methods of preparation that centred on a threefold path of setting time table, making notes and referring previous question paper. Working on concentration, confidence, physical posture and settings, the class didn't forget to add memory enhancing techniques as one of the main ingredients.
